

“The New and the Old Unite”

The Fellowship is very pleased to announce the alliance between the Fellowship and the National Association of Licensed Paralegals (NALP).

Apart from the benefit of being a member of the only wills and probate membership body which is actively seeking regulation of the industry from the Government, it also means that as an Affiliate member of NALP, Fellowship members can access the benefits previously only enjoyed by NALP members.

NALP is a well respected and highly professional membership body that has, for the last 23 years, been responsible for the Education and Training of many thousands of paralegals across the UK.

This means an immediate and automatic membership for Fellowship members of the benefits of being an Affiliate member of NALP, the fastest growing membership body of its kind in the UK.

Spare a few minutes to look at their website www.nationalparalegals.com to learn more about the role of paralegals, which leading QC Cherie Booth recently said was becoming “more and more significant”, and what it means to be associated with NALP.

Rita Leat, CEO and President of the Fellowship said, “We are extremely proud to be associated with the National Association of Licensed Paralegals, an organisation that commands great respect within the legal community. It means that members of both organisations now have dual membership and, perhaps more importantly, dual benefits”.

Amanda Hamilton, CEO of NALP said, “We are pleased to be working with the Fellowship of Professional Willwriters and Probate Practitioners, which like the NALP, insists on high standards and ethics for its members. We welcome Fellowship members of the FPWPP as Affiliate members of NALP and look forward to a long standing close working relationship in the future”.
